

Battle Over, War Still On City Shop Hours Made Wide-Open

Stores Exempted From Compulsion

By R. O. MARRION

City council yesterday approved wide-open shopping for Victoria.

By a vote of 7-2, it gave preliminary approval to a bylaw exempting 67 classes of shops from shop-closing regulations. The bylaw requires one more reading at the next meeting of council before it can go into effect, but a simple majority can pass it then.

ALL EXEMPTED?

The 67 classes of retail outlets exempted from regulation other than the Lord's Day Act appear to include every kind of retail business in the city, although city solicitor T. P. O'Grady indicated otherwise.

Council's decision ended a long and strenuous battle over store hours, one group of merchants fighting for a 5½-day week and one for a six-day week.

But while it ended a battle, it may not have ended the war. Some aldermen foresaw continued representations for changes in the future. (See reaction of some merchants, Page 17.)

Ald. Hugh Ramsay and Ald. Elmer McEwen opposed the bylaw, favoring retention of a six-day week in the summer and December and a 5½-day week the rest of the year.

PUBLIC COMES FIRST

The public should be considered first, Ald. Ramsay said, and the public was adequately served by a 5½-day week. The smaller shops felt a six-day week was a handicap in giving good service.

Certainly a man would have the right to close his shop as he saw fit, Ald. Ramsay said, but if he wasn't going to compete he might as well go out of business.

DIVIDED 50-50

Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood said merchants were divided 50-50 on the question, so "whatever we do we are going to hurt somebody." But the bylaw would leave the door open, he said, for particular classes of stores to come to council asking for a shorter week.

The public, he said, would not want council to "legislate anyone's business if he wants to stay open."

PUBLIC'S WISH

Ald. Austin Curtis said he thought the public had demonstrated that it wanted to be able to shop on Wednesday afternoons.

If the present bylaw was not changed, he said, "it's going to be practically impossible to enforce."

Ald. D. J. Proudfoot said it was time restrictive legislation for businessmen was stopped. It was just about impossible, he said, for businessmen to carry on with all the taxes and restrictions.

WIVES VIEW
Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson made the shortest speech. The housewives, Ald. Wilson said, would like the stores open. And housewives, she reminded council, worked seven days a week.

Ald. Arthur Dowell said he didn't think it was "the responsibility of this or any other council to pass legislation restricting various trades."

MORE WORRIES
Ald. M. H. Mooney said he didn't know what better bylaw could be presented, although, he said, "I feel sure we are going to have more petitions and more worries from merchants."

"I feel that individuals should have rights," said Ald. Elmer McEwen, "but if they interfere with the rights of others, that's a different thing."

CITY HALL EXAMPLE

The city hall and the government buildings closed Saturday for reasons of economy and convenience, and the same principle should apply to business, he said.

"Hundreds and hundreds of restaurant people are going bankrupt because of long hours," he said. "Because the man across the street is open, they have to stay open."

CUT-THROAT TACTICS

"You'll revert to cut-throat competition you haven't seen for years."

Although the classes of shops entirely exempted from closing restrictions appear to include all kinds of retail business, the city solicitor said he thought council would be exceeding its powers if it set out with the express purpose of exempting all retail shops.

So, he said, here was a tentative list, and if council thought it should be added to, well and good.

TRUCK JACK-KNIFES KILLS CITY WOMAN

Five Injured In Crashes

An elderly woman died and at least five persons were injured in Victoria yesterday as heavy rain marked the return of hazardous winter driving conditions.

Mrs. Isobel L. Tautz, 73, 3210 Douglas, died in St. Joseph's Hospital, three hours after she was struck at Douglas and Francis by a jack-knifing B.C. Electric explosives truck towing a compressor.

It was the third traffic fatality in Victoria this year and the first since early summer.

SECONDS LATER

Seconds later two other women were injured when they were struck by a car, two blocks south of the fatality scene. (See picture on Page 12.)

The two accidents occurred at the start of the evening traffic rush on Douglas.

Police said Herta Schumacher, 529 Sumas, suffered leg and head injuries, and Gladys Smith, 1042 Goldstream, shoulder injuries in the second collision. Their conditions were described as fair.

DRIVING DANGEROUS

Traffic officers said driving conditions at the time were dangerous.

Mrs. Tautz was crossing Douglas from east to west in the crosswalk when she was struck by the truck driven by Donald Croft, 3756 Seaton.

The woman suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries, officials said.

ON WAY HOME

A nephew, Peter Tautz, 4486 Hughes, said the elderly woman "was probably coming home from shopping in town." She retired about five years ago from the Hudson's Bay Company.

Any witnesses to the accident were urged to call city police.

Police said the car involved in the Douglas-Burnside accident was driven by Ernest G. Worth, 2617 Fernwood.

WINDSHIELD SHATTERED

Windshield of the Worth car was shattered in front of the driver in the collision with the pedestrians.

Nat French, 2922 Douglas, said he was in his house reading, when he heard the crash.

"I ran out to see the women lying in the road," he said.

Later in the afternoon, Mrs. Ivy Colman, 1409 Lang, and Mrs. Mildred Diben, 3434 Doncaster, were treated for minor injuries, after they were involved in a two-car collision at Cook and Hillside.

HEAVILY DAMAGED

The drivers were identified as Rex B. Colman, 1409 Lang, and Ruben C. Carlson, 3073 Albina. Both vehicles were heavily damaged.

George Frayne of Cobble Hill was treated for a cut ear yesterday morning, after the car in which he was a passenger, driven by Margaret W. Melrose, Cobble Hill, collided with a car driven by Desmond W. Carrier, 4131 Rosedale. The accident was on Menzies Street.

Pole Primate Going to Rome

WARSAW (UPI)—Stefan Cardinal Wyszyński of Poland probably will be the only Roman Catholic primate from the "church of the silence" in the Communist countries to attend the conclave in the Vatican to elect the successor of Pius XII, according to indications yesterday.

Unofficial but reliable sources indicated there was little doubt that the Polish government would grant Cardinal Wyszyński a passport for the journey when requested.

According to reports, neither Aloysius Cardinal Stepinac of Yugoslavia nor Josef Cardinal Mindszenty of Hungary would attend the conclave.

Near Duncan

Crash Hurts Five

DUNCAN—Five persons were injured—one seriously—in a two-car smash in driving rain at the intersection of Old Island Highway and Old Koksilah Road, five miles southeast of here, late yesterday.

In critical condition last night in King's Daughters' Hospital, Duncan, was Orville Maxwell, Cobble Hill, manager of Garner's Builders' Supplies.

FAIR CONDITION

In fair condition after being rushed to the same hospital by Kiwanis Volunteer Ambulance were his son, Edward, and a friend, Charles Boyles, also of Cobble Hill, both teenagers.

The other injured were Donald Doney, Koksilah, and Dennis Stubbs, Duncan.

SMALL TRUCK

The two Maxwells and young Boyles were occupants of a small model truck demolished in a collision with a car in which the other two men were riding.

TRAPPED IN CAR

The Boyles youth was trapped for 20 minutes in the smashed truck before the crew of a wrecker could pry him loose.

Canadian Serum

Cancer Battler Promising

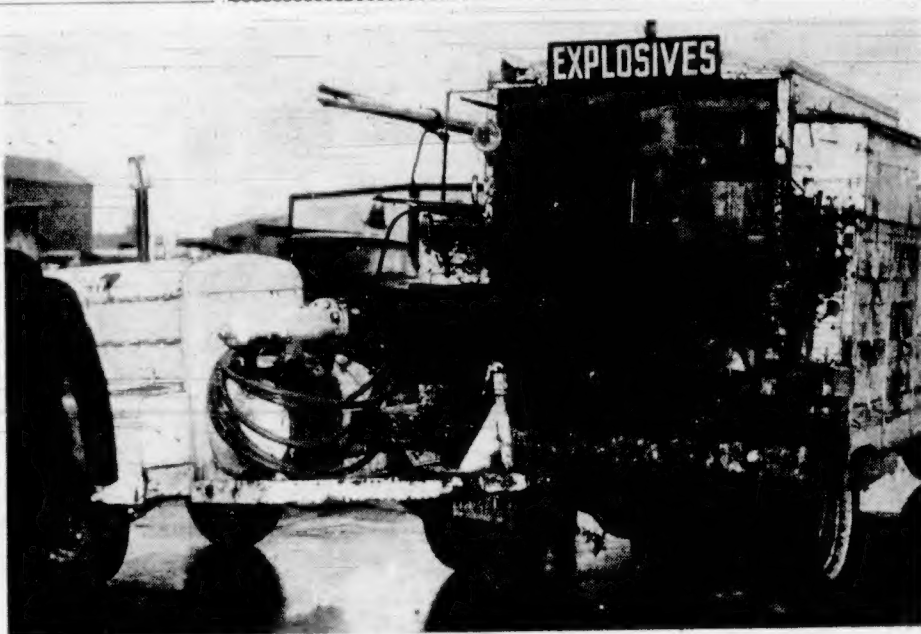

LONDON (Reuters)—Results of a new Canadian anti-serum against cancer are "surprising and promising," says the British Medical Journal.

The journal says results of treatment with the anti-serum by Dr. D. W. Gordon Murray of Toronto were surprising "because they appear to be at least as good as anything produced experimentally in the serum therapy of spontaneous or induced animal tumors except the virus tumors."

The serum, previously described in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, was prepared by injecting horses with suspensions of human cancer tissue.

U.S. Warns Army Chiefs

WASHINGTON (CP)—Acting Defence Secretary Donald A. Quarles said yesterday that U.S. military leaders around the world had been cautioned against making statements with foreign policy implications.

Jupiter Missile Explodes

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI)—An Army Jupiter was exploded by a range safety officer 30 seconds after launching last night in a flight that might have been crucial in competition for the role of America's intermediate range ballistic missile.

The Jupiter showered flaming chunks of metal on the cape about one minute after the explosion in the air. It struck the earth with a terrific boom that shook the cape.

Test site officials announced that the Jupiter "apparently went out of control shortly after the launching and was destroyed by the safety officer to disperse the remaining fuel. No injuries or significant property damage have been reported."

Orphan 'Lift' Fatal

PORTLAND (AP)—Two children were pronounced dead Thursday when a group of Korean orphans arrived here by plane from Asia.

A coroner's deputy said death apparently was caused by pneumonia. The children were part of a group of 81 orphans brought to new homes in this country by Harry Holt, 53, a Creswell, Ore. farmer. Holt said he was tired but will return to Korea Sunday for another group. Holt said he now has brought 1,065 Korean orphans to the U.S. Most of them were fathered by United Nations servicemen.

Professors Ask Million

VANCOUVER (CP)—University of British Columbia professors are seeking a general salary increase totalling more than $1,000,000 a year.

A brief asking that salary levels at UBC be raised to "parity with those of the University of Toronto" has been drawn up by the faculty association, representing teachers, for submission to the board of governors.

$3,000 GAP

The difference between the two universities in some classifications is $3,000 a year. Full professors and deans at Toronto get $12,000 a year compared with $9,000 a year at UBC.

Total annual cost of increases plus proportionate increases in pensions and disability insurance for the 557 UBC faculty members would be $1,034,100.

UBC is now tied with six other universities for second place among Canadian institutions.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek charged last night that the Communist cease-fire in the Formosa Strait was "political treachery" designed to drive a wedge between Nationalist China and the United States.

The Nationalist president claimed an initial victory in the battle for Quemoy, but warned his people, "we must be prepared to carry on a war of attrition against the Communists so as to destroy their military potential, disintegrate their puppet organizations and liquidate the Communist traitors."

He said the Nationalist breakthrough with supplies to the embattled offshore island of Quemoy had defeated Communist designs on southeast Asia.

Safest Place to Hide Liquor Is in Stomach, Indians Learn

Half-Way Status in B.C.
Spurs Reckless Drinking

(This is the 39th chapter of "The Strangers," a searching report on the plight of B.C. native Indians.)

Four Indian men sat around a full bottle of gin, which one of them was in the act of opening. Four glasses were on the table.

The scene caught the eye of a Catholic priest as he passed by the window of a house that he was going to visit on a West Coast of Vancouver Island Indian reserve.

In the half minute it took him to walk down a path to the other side of the house and climb the front steps, the four men drank the bottle dry.

He arrived at the front window in time to see one of the men shift the empty bottle to a shelf, where it stood in plain view. Then the owner of the house opened the door and sheepishly invited the visitor inside.

Why didn't the four men simply hide the bottle and drink it later? Because, under present liquor laws, Indians have learned that the safest place to hide liquor is in their stomachs. British Columbia Indians can legally drink in beer parlors and cocktail bars. But they are forbidden to buy any alcoholic beverage to take out. It is an offence against the Indian Act for any Indian to be found with a bottle of whisky or beer.

B.C., Manitoba, Ontario, Nova Scotia, the Yukon and the Northwest Territories allow Indians to drink by the glass in "public places." In other provinces the rule is total prohibition—a rule imposed to protect Indians from whisky traders in colonial days.

Right of Provinces

By the revised Indian Act of 1951, as amended in 1956, provinces have the right to extend full liquor privileges to the Indians, subject to the approval of the Governor General in council. In practice, this means that if the B.C. government chose, it could bring in a law at the next session of the Legislature to give Indians the right to buy beer, wine and hard liquor by the bottle.

Before the province could authorize Indians to take home liquor to the reserve, however, Indians of each band would have to approve by referendum.

No provinces have yet done so. B.C. pioneered in granting Indians the right to drink in beer parlors and bars. But some people argue that the half-way status which Indians occupy under B.C. laws is worse than total prohibition because it encourages reckless drinking.

"An Indian can't buy beer to take out, but he can sit in the beer parlor drinking the stuff until he blots," an Indian superintendent pointed out. "He makes it a race with time. He's going to show the white man he can get all the beer he needs. He isn't given a chance to learn the ABCs of drinking."

"It was the same with liquor rationing. All rationing did was to make honest people dishonest. People who never drank before... had liquor, because they didn't want to miss anything that was coming to them."

"If I owned a liquor business and had the power, I'd put the country on rations, and double my sales overnight."

Taverns Full of Indians

"The result of the present law is that the beer parlors are full of Indians. The Indian, knowing he's going to be cut off, will drink three beers to your one. And he stays in there until 11:30."

"When he comes out of the beer parlor, staggering a little, he walks straight into the arms of the police, or else the taxi-driver, who has a bottle in one hand, the other extended palm up for money."

"And because of the added risk of selling to an Indian, the bootlegger charges him a premium price."

"Now Mr. Indian has a mickay of cheap rye, for which he has paid as much as $10. Every second he has the bottle in his hand, he's running the risk of being picked up. A few minutes later it's gone. He heaves the empty bottle over the fence, turns toward home and falls flat on his face. Next day, $15 and costs, or jail."

In a tour through part of B.C. I met Indians in taverns from Victoria to Alert Bay and Prince Rupert. Every one of them said something like this:

"Give us the right to a quiet glass at home, and we'll spend less time in beer parlors. We won't drink so much."

Twice I had to refuse a request by Indians to buy them a case of beer. A party of young men, who had given me a ride from the reserve to the Queen Charlotte City Hotel, where I was staying, asked me to bring them out a case from the beer parlor. When I declined, they looked crestfallen, and I felt an ingrate.

Parted on Chilly Terms

At the Clayoquot Hotel on the west coast of Vancouver Island, I spent some time in friendly discussion with a group of Indians. "Buy us a case?" they asked, as we left. I declined. They said nothing against me, but their manner changed. We parted on chilly terms.

In Alert Bay, it is a recognized trick for Indians to carry away beer in shopping bags, disguised as groceries. An Alert Bay storekeeper told me how he had rebuked a young Indian—a lifelong friend—who came into the store for a shopping bag.

The young man turned sullen, and has acted like a hostile stranger ever since.

A Canadian Legion club is a private place under the law. Indian war veterans in B.C. are denied the right to drink in a Legion canteen—although the Legion welcomes them as members. This is a sore point among Indian veterans.

A white man commits a crime if he pours an Indian guest a drink in his home.

Present B.C. laws, in the view of most observers, are stirring illwill between Indian and white, and adding a sense of inferiority which holds Indians back.

Are Indians really such ferocious drinkers as they are reputed to be? Can their drinking habits be changed by legislation? The Indian liquor problem—if it really is a problem—should be traced down to its emotional roots in the past.

RODERICK HAIG-BROWN
... uestion of dignity

Magistrate Says:

'I Am Ashamed To Enforce Law'

Magistrate Roderick Haig-Brown of Campbell River on cases involving Indians:

"Many Indians appear in my court every year. They are rarely charged with anything more serious than having bought or drunk liquor."

"But an Indian case is never trivial. Indians come to court on these charges with a sense of injustice and discrimination. They are right. The laws that keep liquor from Indians were passed long ago, to protect them from the dirty trading practices of white men."

"Out of this has grown a myth, perpetuated by the ignorant and prejudiced, that Indians 'go crazy' when they drink."

"I once heard a retired Mounted Policeman put that in its proper light. 'Sure,' he said, 'a drunken Indian is tough to handle. Goes right back to the savage. He's liable to be just about as mean and ornery and dirty as a drunk white man.'"

"It is not simply a question of liquor, but of freedom and human dignity that belongs with freedom. I am ashamed every time it is the duty of my court to punish Indians for something that is a crime only for them."

"I am still more ashamed when I act on the law that forces me to ask an Indian where he got his liquor. The answer is nearly always the same: 'A white man I have never seen before gave it to me; it was dark; I don't know what he looked like.'"

"I can believe the story and let the man go; or call him a liar and send him to jail."

"If there is anything in all this that adds to the honor of the court, the safety of the state or the dignity of the individual, I haven't yet been able to discover it."

U.S. Dealers 'Stamped Out' In Big Deal

Harry Martin, manager of the Empire Stamp Company bought the stock from the Pot & Stamps Company of Litchfield, Mass., and the New York Stamp Company.

Pinpoints Air Crashes

Gadget Sends Out SOS

TORONTO (CP)—Two National Research Council scientists have come up with a gadget whose powerful radio promises to save lives and money by guiding rescuers to aircraft crashes.

The device is called the "Crash Position Indicator," developed by D. M. Makow and T. H. Stevenson, who described its function yesterday to the annual Institute of Radio Engineers convention.

At Vancouver

Unwanted Indians Move In

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two East Indians have moved into their new homes in Vancouver, determined to show that they can be good neighbors.

A group of residents of the area protested when Tara Singh and Chandel Singh bought the five-room house Sept. 1. But several neighbors dropped over to welcome the new owners when they took possession on Sunday. The two moved in Wednesday night.

"We are disappointed over what happened and we want to make these people realize they have made a mistake," Tara Singh said. "We will do our best to be good neighbors."

They plan to buy a second home—next door—when they bring their families to Canada from India.

CPI's transmitter and other operating parts are embedded in plastic foam inside what was described as "a tumbling air-foil."

The gadget is attached to the tail of a plane, or any outside area. If the plane should crash, CPI springs loose and floats clear of the wreckage.

Meanwhile, it has begun sending out radio signals to give the position to search planes. All this is automatic.

The inventors said CPI has come through rigid tests in wooded country, ravines and in deep snow. The built-in power supply is good for several days of continuous operation and the signal can be heard 30 miles away.

The device was said to be practically indestructible. During tests, one was hurled at the face of a cliff by a high-speed rocket sled and was not damaged.

The two men said the Ultra Electric Company of Britain has obtained a manufacturing licence and several firms in Canada and the U.S. appear to be interested.

With G. E. Mortimore

PROFIT-sharing may one day prove to be the key to many industrial disputes. But a number of stereotyped opinions and built-in hatreds will have to be destroyed before profit-sharing comes into widespread use.

Recently a Vancouver manufacturer who had a generous profit-sharing plan closed his factory because a union had been organized among his employees.

This man was most strongly opposed to unions. Apparently he felt that profit-sharing eliminated the need for a union, and he took the formation of a union as a nuisance and a personal affront. It was his factory. He had every right to close it. But to an outsider, it seems that his attitude toward organized labor was too rigid and inflexible.

On the other hand, unions themselves, often fall into stereotyped and obstinately thought. One of the ideas cherished by organized labor is that no employer ever makes a generous gesture.

Generosity is a rare quality, it is true, in the horse-trading atmosphere of the bargaining table. But now and again someone on the labor—or management side, in a flash of quixotic good humor, decides to offer the boys across the table an even break. It may not happen often, but it does happen.

Well-Founded Perhaps

Unions have generally opposed profit-sharing plans in the past. They suspected that profit-sharing was little more than a device of the boss to delude them with paper rewards that had no cash value. In some instances their suspicions may have been well-founded.

In other instances, employers may have been prompted by a genuine desire to keep employees loyal and happy in their work.

Unions would be wise to take a second look at the profit-sharing idea. Like any other plan, it can be abused. Finances of a firm, I suppose, might be juggled in such a way that no profits appeared; or profits might be deliberately plowed back into the business, or simply given away to related or subsidiary companies, so as to avoid paying out a share of profits to employees.

Any profit-sharing plan would have to be carefully organized, with a number of safeguards, before it would be acceptable to both sides. Perhaps the trade unions' research bureau, or the government, could draft a set of standards for acceptable profit-sharing plans.

There would be no compulsion on either side to use

Old Toy Box Becomes Coffin for Little Boys

TACOMA, Wash. (AP)—Two young boys were suffocated when they crawled into a large box, formerly used to store toys.

Michael Anderson, 5, and Samuel Fisher, 4, were left in the care of Michael's sister, Karen, 13, while Mrs. Anderson went on an errand. Police said the hasp of the box, which was in the Anderson garage, fell over a staple and the little boys were unable to lift the lid.

Doctor Warns Profession:

Widen Coverage Of Prepaid Care

KELOWNA (CP)—The medical profession should extend prepaid medical coverage to the practical limits otherwise the government will step in to fill the gap, says a Vancouver doctor.

This note of warning was sounded Thursday night by Dr. Hamish McIntosh in his presidential address to the fourth annual meeting of B.C. Medical Services Incorporated.

Dr. McIntosh said he is dedicated to the principle, expressed by the Canadian Medical Association, that prepayment of medical care is desirable. It should be extended ultimately to cover 80 per cent of the population, a figure generally regarded as the practical limit.

"If we ourselves do not extend prepayment, somebody else will, and in particular I mean the government is going to do it for us," he said.

Several members, speaking from the floor at Wednesday's meeting, expressed strong views in favor of M-S-I providing comprehensive coverage for individ-

Fluoridation Vote Set on Mainland

VANCOUVER (CP)—Thirteen of the 14 municipalities in the Greater Vancouver Water District have decided to hold fluoridation plebiscites in the December civic and municipal elections. Last to agree to put the question before voters was Surrey.

The 14th district, North Vancouver municipality, passed a strong favorable vote last year and has decided not to hold another plebiscite.

Red Ensign Losing Favor?

By FORBES RHUDE

MONTREAL (CP)—The "distinctive" Canadian flag supported by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce at its annual meeting this week apparently means one without inclusion of the Union Jack or any emblem of France.

This was indicated by the Sarnia, Ont., delegation which presented the resolution. The delegation also indicated that the maple leaf would be a popular choice for dominant position.

The chamber turned down an amendment which would have recommended as the "distinctive" flag the Canadian ensign—which carries the Union Jack and arms of Canada.

The Sarnia delegation, in a printed resume of its arguments, says, in part:

"The people of Canada have hereditary ties with many countries and our present ensign identifies itself with only one."

"Recent public opinion polls indicate that younger people across the country heartily approve the concept of a 'distinctive flag'.

"Recent flag-design contests have produced comparatively few designs employing the Union Jack or the fleur-de-lis."

"French Canadians, comprising one-third of our population, want a flag that is 100-per-cent Canadian without symbolic representation of either Britain or France."

The flag-resolution, once an issue which would have thrown the chamber into a first-class hassle, caused hardly a ripple this year—a fact regarded by some observers as perhaps one of the most significant happenings in the long-standing issue.

This Isn't Compulsion

THE ruling of the Supreme Court of Canada establishing the validity of Saskatchewan legislation on so-called drunkometer tests in cases of impaired driving seems to have been wrongly interpreted in some quarters as an endorsement of compulsion. From summarized reports of the high court's decision on this controversial subject it is obvious that the judges do not accept the doctrine that a motorist should be required to submit to a chemical test against his will; the written judgment says so in so many words: "No one can be forced to submit to a breath test."

What the court did find was that it is within their powers for provincial authorities to revoke the licence of a driver, suspected of being alcoholically impaired, if he refuses to submit to a test. By inference this is one more judicial ruling, by the highest court in Canada, that the holding of a driving licence is a privilege, not a right.

Though it has aroused widespread interest, the Supreme Court's decision does not appear to establish any new principle with respect to withdrawal of the privileges of driving. Authority to do so is inherent in statutes of most of the provinces which have been accepted without challenge. A test of sobriety is as much a test of ability to drive a vehicle safely as is the routine test of ability to handle the controls. In British Columbia, for example, a motorist is not granted a licence until he has passed a proficiency test. Thereafter he is required on call of the motor licence division to submit to periodical re-tests, and if he neglects or refuses to do so his licence is revoked. He is not under any compulsion to take the test, in that police officers do not seize and forcibly convey him to the examiners. The choice remains his own: to undergo examination or forfeit the privilege of driving.

Precisely the same interpretation appears applicable to the Supreme Court's decision. It is a common-sense judgment which does no violence to Canadian belief in individual rights. That being so, there is no occasion for anyone to regard the ruling with misgiving, since it is merely reaffirmation of a universally accepted principle in law and in business relations.

The efficiency of the drunkometer and its value as a "witness" is another matter, and was not an issue in the case before the Supreme Court. The court did rule, however, that its evidence is admissible, thereby eliminating a major legal objection to the employment of a mechanical device as a witness against an accused driver.

They Have the Same Human Rights

ONE had scarcely thought there was need of a Canadian Association for the Advancement of Colored People, an organization formed this week by a group of 80 Negroes in Toronto. Racial division in this country is not an issue of consequence, even if some isolated instances of prejudice may on occasion be noted. In all there are reported to be only 32,000 Negroes in Canada, and these are spread around the country in numbers that create no problem.

Formation of such a society may suggest to people in other lands that individual Canadians of the Negro race are being discriminated against to the extent that their rights are in danger. This is not so. The laws and ethos of Canada permit them the same freedom and standing as anyone else. The courts are also quick to protect their status as Canadian citizens, nor would society as a whole condone affront to them on racial grounds.

Individual behavior may sometimes react to Negro disfavor, but this is something that is of personal inclination and is not necessarily an indictment of colored people. Individuals with white skins do not embrace every other person of similar hue, and the human factor of preference cannot be eliminated. For their own part Negroes are entitled to the same private choice of friends and intimates. Happily however the instances of racial intolerance in this country are not many. This may be influenced by the small number of colored citizens in Canada, which prevents any major clash of prejudice, but the fact remains nevertheless.

If it does not become an agency of propaganda, needlessly looking for slight where none is intended, however, the newly formed association designed to promote the welfare of Negro citizens can be of value, if only to work harmoniously with white agencies of similar sentiment which sustain the credo that all Canadians are equal in the eyes of the law and as individuals are entitled to the same human rights.

Government House Grounds

THE imaginative and excellent plan proposed by the provincial government for the development of Government House grounds should add a first class attraction to the capital city of British Columbia. It will be noted that the laying out of botanical gardens, including the "Rose Garden of the Ages" and public exhibition areas, involves full development of the southern portion of the grounds, leaving the Rockland Avenue approaches much as they are. The addition of adequate parking space in rear of the new gardens and public assembly areas will also supply a long desired improvement.

If the detailed scheme prepared to the order of the public works department is adhered to, British Columbia in the new edifice taking the place of the one destroyed by fire and the new gardens should have one of the most beautiful gubernatorial residences in Canada. The setting, on top of a rise facing the Strait of Juan de Fuca, was a happy one in the first instance. The full development of its natural and ornamental opportunities now will be a splendid enhancement of the whole setting. Especially in this city of gardens, the provincial capital will have in the new Government House and its ornamental grounds a distinctive attraction of very considerable beauty.

The drawings also indicate that public functions at Government House have been borne in mind, with provision for open-air gatherings and ceremonies wherein the ornamental gardens will supply an ideal environment. Ambitious plans for the planting of an exhibition rose garden at another part of the grounds should prove a highly popular initiation. More visitors are drawn to the provincial capital on a year-around basis because of its gardens and flowers than perhaps for any other individual reason. The new mansion in its new grounds will become one of the most important acquisitions in British Columbia's centennial year.

Interpreting the News

Week's Truce Is Puzzling

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

THE state department frankly doesn't know what to make of Red China's unheralded cease-fire in the Formosa area. Washington is puzzled.

The state department's discomfiture is apparent in the sparse official American comment thus far on Peiping's one-week moratorium in its bombardment of the Nationalist island outposts of Quemoy and Matsu.

The United States has done about all it can do for the moment—offer the cease-fire move a cautious welcome and then begin looking between the lines of the Peiping proclamation.

For this is, after all, a cease-fire however inadequate, and a cease-fire has been the primary aim of U.S. policy in the Formosa crisis. In that sense, it represents an easing of the deadlock over Quemoy and a sign, however small, of some flexibility in the Chinese position.

What the state department now has to decide is whether this represents a genuine move by the Red Chinese in the direction of a permanent cease-fire and possibly a settlement of the dispute over the offshore islands. This it unquestionably will try to determine when U.S. Ambassador Jacob Beam and Red Chinese Envoy Wang Ping-nan resume their diplomatic talks in Warsaw shortly.

There is some speculation that the temporary cease-fire represents a Communist response to the hints State Secretary Dulles dropped at his press conference last week that the United States might modify its position if there were some sign of "give" by Red China.

One curious—and militarily unrealistic—fact isn't overlooked by some Washington observers. That is that the Red Chinese, by halting their fire, are permitting the Nationalists to replenish their stocks of ammunition and other supplies. The net result of this can only be to reduce the effects of the war of attrition they have waged on Matsu and Quemoy since they began bombarding the islands late in August.

That brings up two questions: If Red China really means to conquer the islands, why give the Nationalists a breathing spell and a chance to rally their defence forces? If they intend to start banging away at the islands again next week, why permit the Nationalists to bring in fresh shells to fire away at Red guns?

One is that the Communists intend to turn this into a permanent cease-fire. This theory is that the Red Chinese, having taken the first step in halting their fire, now will find it easy to leave things that way and continue warfare on the propaganda front.

"It's agreed then, gentlemen, that next year we'll get de Havillands to design one and this young fella Moss to sail her."

Antarctic Adventure...

...of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

I DID not see Earl Mountbatten while he was here but I saw pictures of him and a fine, handsome man he looks just what you'd hope such a legendary figure would be.

Talking about figures he has a waistline that must be the envy of some other admirals.

He has, too, as you might have noticed, a lovely bunch of medals adorning his chest, and nowhere do medals fit the decor so well as on a naval uniform.

In one picture I counted 33 ribbons, which is enough to take Nelson's breath away. In times past it wasn't so easy to run up such a long string. While in Edinburgh this summer I saw in a museum the medals of General Sir Ian Hamilton. A card claimed he had the biggest collection of his time, 26 all told.

Hamilton was the man who was recommended for the VC twice, as a subaltern and as a colonel. He tells in his memoirs that he was turned down, firstly because he was too junior an officer and secondly because he was too senior an officer. Obviously he lived in the wrong age.

Just who has the largest array of fruit salad, as the Legionary once inelegantly phrased it, it would be interesting to know. At a luncheon at the Empress one day I counted 32 ribbons worn by our own General Crerar, and I fancy he leads the Canadian parade. Each time I see a picture of the famous "Monty" he seems to have added to his pyramid, and at a guess I would think he's the top-ranker in this respect.

Coincident with the First Sea Lord's visit I noticed a CP story suggesting that Earl Mountbatten might be the next governor-general of Canada. He would suit the part excellently, of course, for Lord Louis does not wear his medals for nothing. They represent quality of a high order. It would be a change, too, to have a sailor at Rideau Hall, where celebrated soldiers have had a good innings. Byng and Alexander are two of recent memory.

This would mean, of course, a return to the policy of governor-generals from the United Kingdom. It would also mean that the home-bred experiment didn't last long. If service chiefs are the most popular choice, however, I could name two who would grace the position well, viz: Generals Crerar and McNaughton. Both are native sons and I suppose that's a strike against them in some circles, but as I mentioned the former has a requisite array of medals and the latter, if not sporting quite so many, is certainly a dynamic and colorful figure.

There is no use blinking the fact that a governor-general with color and excitement attached to his name is a distinct asset in this post. I doubt exceedingly however that Mr. Diefenbaker would ever recommend General McNaughton, for reasons I need not pursue.

But if we are to go outside Canada I could suggest another arresting individual, also possessing a long roll of decorations including the top one of all, the VC—Lieutenant-General the Lord Freyberg. He is a New Zealander into the bargain, and thus would neatly introduce the fashion of Commonwealth exchange of governors-general.

I haven't room to cite all his virtues, but he was wounded 13 times in battle—nine in the first war and four in the second. His DSO was a greater epic even than his VC, and wounds alone stopped him by a quarter of a mile from swimming the Channel. If it isn't to be a Canadian next time at Rideau Hall he would supply all that's required in the Queen's representative.

THE dramatic exploits of Sir Edmund Hillary and Sir Vivian Fuchs in the Antarctic, which made world headlines early this year, were recalled at the International Conference on the Geophysical Year held in Moscow recently. Leaders of all important international expeditions were there to report on their researches.

Scientists listened to a breath-taking account of the difficulties encountered by Fuchs and the other members of the British expedition who, it was feared, might suffer the same fate as their compatriot Scott, nearly half a century ago. After reaching the South Pole on January 17, 1912, Scott and his party perished on the return journey, overcome by cold and exhaustion.

But at the Moscow meeting the journeys of Fuchs and Hillary were only one episode in the long list of explorations now being carried out by scientists and experts stationed on the Antarctic ice-cap.

This vast continent measures nearly 6,000,000 square miles, an area roughly as large as the whole of Europe and the United States put together. Extremely low temperatures, which in certain regions descend to -108° Fahrenheit are aggravated by blizzards which sometimes attain a force of 120 miles an hour. "In these conditions," explained M. Bertrand Lambert, leader of the French Antarctic expedition, "we have to record each day our observations on various Antarctic phenomena."

At temperatures below -67° Fahrenheit petroleum freezes; hurricane lamps are extinguished; and natural rubber breaks like glass. Below -85° Fahrenheit, breathing becomes very painful and special apparatus must be worn.

Yet life is being organized in the Antarctic. The United States has 3,500 men on the continent, working at its seven bases. The most important of these is the air supply base at McMurdo Sound, where the Globe-masters land. Nineteen men are established at the geographic pole, in air-conditioned huts.

The Soviet base at Mirny is constructed as a small underground town: electricity, libraries, and leisure rooms have been installed. From above ground, Mirny appears to be a forest of chimneys sticking up out of the snow. On the Soviet base situated at the geomagnetic pole, about 900 miles from the coast, the motors of tractors are kept running night and day: if they stopped it would be impossible to get them started again.

The geological history of the Antarctic is as yet practically unknown. This is not really surprising, however, since many more accessible lands have not yet been systematically explored. Scientific study of the subsoil of Europe, for instance, has hardly begun.

Among the great enigmas of the Antarctic are the two vast indentations known as the Ross Sea and the Weddell Sea. The most likely explanation of their formation seems to be that they are linked by straits hidden beneath the icecap, thus dividing the land mass in two, the eastern part being considerably the larger. Scientists are at present at work trying to confirm this theory.

Research so far carried out seems to prove that, of the total area of nearly 6,000,000 square miles, about 800,000 square miles are made up of glaciers extending beyond the rocky base. Suspended above the sea, or floating on it like the "Ross barrier" (an area as big as France, covering some 210,000 square miles) these glaciers form what is known as the "ice shelf."

The Antarctic continent is by no means flat: the pole itself is situated at an altitude of nearly 10,000 feet. Majestic peaks attaining 23,000 feet have been charted in Marie Byrd Land by means of aerial photography.

American scientists have succeeded in making a complete relief map of Queen Maud Land. Here a vast mountain range, over 13,000 feet high, with peaks rising to 16,000 feet, stretches for nearly 1,600 miles. A curious feature of this mountain range is a valley situated in the centre which is entirely free of ice. Its slopes of purple and rose-colored rock are streaked here and there with black coal seams. But nobody can yet say whether this coal and other minerals which may be discovered there and elsewhere are mere geological freaks or whether they indicate rich deposits in the unexplored subsoil. In any case the scientists did not go there to exploit the mineral wealth but to chart an area of the globe which so far has proved intractable to investigation.

Another strange phenomenon is the famous Bungee Oasis in Queen Mary Land. Located in 1948 by the crew of an American aircraft, the oasis was surveyed in 1956 by an expedition of Soviet scientists. Devoid of ice and snow, it provides a striking contrast to the surrounding regions, and in summer temperatures there reach 77° Fahrenheit.

In studies on ice formation the Americans have been carrying out extremely interesting work at Byrd base. An enormous pit some 1,000 feet deep has been dug in the ice, and core-samples of ice have been taken at various levels. The ice is melted and filtered and the contents analyzed, and information has thus been obtained on the climatic history of the Antarctic over a period of thousands of years. Dates can be ascertained, for instance, by traces of dust deposited after the eruption of the Krakatoa volcano in Indonesia in 1883, or from deposits of sand resulting from sandstorms in Australia.

Research work so far has confirmed the theory that the ice of the Antarctic is gradually receding. In one of the sectors where they are working, Soviet scientists have established the fact that, while the thaw may have started 4,000 or 5,000 years ago, in the more recent past the ice covering has receded about 60 miles, and diminished in thickness by about 1,300 feet.

The Packsack

By GREGORY CLARK

IN a new residential suburb of one of our fastest growing cities last week I encountered an exciting novelty. Only every fifth or sixth street, either north-south or east-west, was a through street. All the others were one-block streets that began and ended in the middle of the adjoining blocks. Since the blocks were short, this meant that no vehicles, whether the cars of the residents or delivery vans, could go high-tailing through. To exit, you had to zig-zag your way to the through streets, which were thoroughly messed up with stop lights, stop signs and all the usual paralysis of traffic control. Paralysis, that is, from the point of view of the whizzers amongst us.

I asked one of the residents if this did not involve a lot of trouble and expense as regards the laying on of water, sewers and other utilities. But he thought not.

"This is a residential area," he said, "and in some way we have got to figure out how to preserve the proper quiet and peace of residential areas against the mounting motorization of our age."

The only similar instance I can think of is a city in the southern states I passed through last year where, at every intersection of the residential sections, there are foot-deep gutters in the concrete, which you have to bump over carefully in low gear, or else get thrown through the car roof.

Blowing Its Top

By North American Newspaper Alliance

BRISBANE, Australia—Exploding bottles of 70-year-old whiskey were being recovered from a wreck off Southport Beach, Queensland. Three hundred tons of whiskey have been in the holds of the windjammer Scottish Prince since she was wrecked in 1887.

Members of the Queensland Underwater Research Group, an organization of men and women who explore with aqualung gear, tried to take some bottles as souvenirs.

One bottle exploded in the glove box of a member's car as he was driving home to Brisbane after salvage work in the Scottish Prince. Another bottle blew up in the boot of a car. One member got a bottle home but it exploded on the sideboard.

Lyle Davis, a former air force pilot, found the wreck in 40 feet of water, half a mile off the beach, when he was flying over the area in a light plane.

"But madam," protested a book canvasser who was about to be turned away from a door. "I have something here that is bound to interest you. The Husband's Friend, 100 Excuses for Staying Out Late."

"What makes you think the book would interest me?" demanded the lady of the house angrily.

"Well," replied the canvasser, "I sold a copy to your husband on his way to the station this morning."

The highly-explosive whiskey was found to blow its top with just a little shaking. Government analysis of the whiskey showed that it was 77 per cent proof.

The analyst said it was perfectly safe to drink though it had a slightly sulphurous smell. The matured-in-water whiskey evaporates quickly and burns with an almost invisible flame.

The Scottish Prince, an 800-ton all-metal barque, was tacking north from Sydney to Brisbane in 1887 when she struck a sandbank and sank. Whiskey was her main cargo.

Lyle Davis, a former air force pilot, found the wreck in 40 feet of water, half a mile off the beach, when he was flying over the area in a light plane.

It is pointed out that the United Nations is a good place for letting off international steam. Some day it could be even more valuable if it kept the steam from building up in the first place.

Automotive dreamers foresee the day when a car can be driven without any hands on the wheel. Already we have cars that can be driven without a brain, but not for long.

Why the Hysteria?

The Colonist recently has been full of screaming requests that industry and people provide winter work to avoid unemployment. This morning (Oct. 8) you report VMD may lay off 400 men if further orders are not secured.

Just why all this hysteria? All summer the same men, and for that matter all union members, have been striking one after the other for huge wage increases when there has been nothing to justify them or warrant them.

If these men were so willing to put themselves out of work when it was available and were so ready to harm the shareholders of the various industries that provided them and their families with a living, why should anyone worry now that winter is here? Let them now have the rest they so earnestly desired themselves.

Unemployment insurance, the modern curse, should be abolished.

In Bad Taste

As a mere part-time student and member of the art gallery, I would find the controversy over the Salgo exhibition amusing were it not in bad taste and an affront to a visiting artist.

In spite of my limitations in intelligently participating in this discussion I think I am right in claiming that the photographs from which the selection was made would reveal competence in line, composition and, what is of supreme importance, "values." That is to say the subtle variations in tone of light. Possibly the more than usual daring in the use of color confused the critics, accustomed as we are here to more sombre atmosphere. I can imagine that more intensity of color is typical of the Mexican scene. I have heard also that Andres Salgo uses a pigment of a special luminous quality.

Mr. Salgo is apt at repartee. He is perhaps aware that one of his critics did paint his house in fearsome colors, and if he had had a barn would probably have painted that also.

EDITH M. CUPPAGE,
1034 Rockland Avenue, Victoria, B.C.

Ill-Mannered Criticism

The art gallery will lose little on points from the ill-mannered criticism of the works of a Mexican exhibitor, as the general public, often regrettably diffident about the arts in general, always tune in to a fight, and it would not be surprising if increased numbers attended the gallery to judge for themselves. Who's the umpire, anyway?

DONALD H. SEYMOUR,
209 Cook Street, Victoria, B.C.

Who'd Be Surprised

Some time ago I visited the Victoria Art Gallery. My first impression was that there must be some special exhibition of rather young children's paintings going on in many of the rooms. Upon inquiry I found that most of these paintings had been done by Victoria's very own artists.

On Oct. 7 you published a letter from seven of our artists criticizing the work of a visiting Mexican artist. These seven people seem rather concerned about the people of Victoria feeling "considerably surprised" at the character of this artist's paintings. I can assure our artists that after my first visit to the gallery nothing would surprise me.

I would further like to suggest that an exhibition of paintings done by these seven people be held in the gallery, and the general public invited to state the candid opinions of same. Perhaps our seven artists might be considerably surprised.

SPOKANE, Police said 16-year-old Burl C. Thompson, who has been skipping school, barricaded himself in his house with two .30-30 rifles, two shotguns, a 22-caliber rifle with ammunition and dared officers to come and get him.

The youth paced from one window to another of the empty house, fingering a heavy deer rifle and shouting taunts at a score or more of policemen outside for almost three hours.

Then he quietly gave up after talking with Police Chief Clifford Bayne, Sheriff William Kelly and Richard S. Riegel, a school guidance counselor. Not a shot was fired.

B.O.A.C.'s COMET 4

INAUGURATES THE WORLD'S FIRST

PURE-JET PASSENGER SERVICE

ACROSS THE ATLANTIC

COMET 4
JETLINER
SUPREME IN THE SKIES!

Last Saturday, the first of BOAC's new fleet of Comet 4 jetliners to be placed on scheduled passenger service left New York and 6 hours and 12 minutes later landed at London Airport. Simultaneously, another Comet 4 completed a west bound flight from London to New York.

We are proud of this history-making event and of the Comet 4 — which is the most thoroughly tested airliner the world has ever known. Proud also of the one hundred and twenty jet-trained BOAC pilots who have already logged a total of 15 million Comet flying miles.

We prefer to look back on these achievements, however, as simply another important step forward in providing the sort of service that world travellers have come to expect from BOAC.

We now offer a choice of jets to Britain—the Comet 4 and the jet prop Britannia. For flight reservations on either of these magnificent aircraft, see your Travel Agent, Railway Ticket Office, or British Overseas Airways Corporation.

Thousands File Past Pope

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (CP) — Thousands of mourners filed past the body of Pope Pius XII Thursday night in humble obeisances to the pontiff who died here early in the day.

They packed the main square before the papal summer palace and jammed roads leading to this small town in the Alban hills 15 miles southeast of Rome. Police had to stop traffic into the town early in the eve-

The body of the Pope lay in state in the palace. Today it will be returned to the Vatican for formal mourning and burial services.

The pontiff's body will be carried in a glass-sided hearse so thousands will be able to view it on the stately procession. At one time mourners so filled the palace square it was almost impossible to move. The gates were opened at men, women and children began filtering through. The embalmed body of the pontiff lay dressed in white and red on a platform covered with red silk. A film of cellophane was stretched over the body.

Nine days of formal Vatican mourning, known as the "novendial," start today when the pontiff's body will be brought to St. Peter's Basilica in Rome. Each of the 11 cardinals pres-one by one at the Pope's bedside Thursday morning before going to the Vatican for the first of their daily "congregations."

MONTREAL — Paul Emile Cardinal Leger called on city authorities to "close gambling places and night clubs at least for one day and, if possible, for three nights, especially on the day of the Holy Father's funeral."

LONDON — Queen Elizabeth has sent her condolences to the Vatican.

CASTEL GANDOLFO — Dozens of women were injured when a crowd of at least 8,000 fought to view the body of Pope Pius XII lying in state.

VATICAN CITY — Benedetto Aloisi Cardinal Masella was elected by his fellow cardinals as papal chamberlain, to administer church affairs until a new pontiff is chosen.

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy — Delirium led Pope Pius to believe he conducted a final public audience after his first stroke Monday, a priest said yesterday.

ROME — Premier Amintore Fanfani called for three days of official mourning throughout Italy.

MADRID — A 10-day period of BELGRADE — Requiem masses were ordered in all Roman Catholic churches in Belgrade. The Yugoslav radio, however, mentioned the Pope's death only briefly.

WARSAW — Thousands of Polish Catholics prayed in the churches.

DUBLIN — Radio's broadcast solemn music and all flags flew at half staff.

BRUSSELS — Flags were lowered to half staff over all the pavilions at the world's fair in Brussels, even the Russian. Loudspeakers were silenced.

TEL AVIV — Foreign Minister Golda Meir of Israel recalled the Pope was an outspoken foe of oppression of Jews.

MOSCOW — The illness of Pope Pius XII and his death were ignored by press and radio in Russia.

CASTEL GANDOLFO — The Pope's last moments were described by Father Pellegrino. "Amazingly enough, after the Pope had stopped breathing, he started again for about 30 seconds. But then Professor Antonio Gasbarrini shook his head sadly and burst into tears."

Seaway Nears Completion

Queen to Open Huge Project in 1959

Canada next year gets 3,000 more miles of coastline and a truly new economic injection. When Queen Elizabeth opens the massive half-billion-dollar St. Lawrence Seaway next spring, she will witness a powerful economic force.

Transport of bulk products will leap. Western farmers will enjoy lower grain shipping charges. Most important, there is nation of "equal."

Seaway, but the biggest won't. Realistic studies of probable Seaway cargoes indicate that domestic bulk shipments will demand much of its capacity. Seaway's traffic, according to figure "the recent Canadian Trade"

That's a more realistic figure for immediate consideration. It is expected to be reached within five years. Of this, 18 million tons would move downriver, would include 10 million tons of grain and grain products, three million tons of soft coal, and 1.5 million tons of iron and steel. Upriver tonnage would be 26.5 million, including 20 million tons of iron ore. The "misses" that get

Britain May Birch Juvenile Delinquents

BLACKPOOL, England (CP) that he introduce flogging as a measure to combat Britain's mounting crime wave. Secretary R. A. Butler Thursday rejected pleas from delegates attending the annual Conservative party conference of introducing birching of young offenders as one method of stamping out a serious increase in juvenile crime.

Butler recalled that punishment by flogging had been banned since 1861 for most crimes and "I don't propose to turn the clock back 100 years." The minister, whose advocacy of humanitarian methods in dealing with criminals has been applauded by psychologists while offending some sections of his party, also said he had no intention of introducing legislation for broader use of capital punishment.

LENGTHY OVATION

Delegates interrupted his speech with cries of "No, no" several times but finished by giving him a two-minute ovation and almost unanimous approval to a resolution calling for "an immediate review of the causes of crime and the application of more effective measures to reduce it." There was no mention of flogging or hanging.

Island Man's Plea:

'Let Slav Cardinal Go to Rome'

NANAIMO — A telegram on behalf of the 1,000,000 Croats on the North American continent has been sent to Prime Minister Diefenbaker asking the government to request the Yugoslav government to permit Cardinal Stepinac, primate of Croatia, to attend the Vatican conclave for the election of the next Pope.

The wire was sent by Miladen Gijun-Zorkin of Nanaimo, president of the Croatian Peasant Societies of Canada and the United States.

"The Yugoslav government should also be requested to allow Cardinal Stepinac to return from the Vatican to his duties as Archbishop of Zagreb," the telegram said.

Copies were also sent to President Eisenhower, Canadian cardinals McGuigan and Leger, and Cardinal Spellman of the U.S.

According to reports Cardinal Stepinac will not be able to leave Yugoslavia because of illness and restrictions placed on his movements by the government after he was released from prison.

Aluminums

Return To Favor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Aluminum issues, liquors, televisions, and papers featured an irregularly higher stock market.

Their best levels in history and rails approached their highest in more than a year, while utilities were at a new 28-year top.

Aluminum issues were bid up as much as 3 points in Aluminum Limited. Alcoa and Kaiser rose more than a point.

This group was helped by expansion of operations by several companies in various parts of the nation.

Base Metals Best

TORONTO (CP) — Base metals stretched their advance to six sessions as they led the stock market ahead in moderate active trading.

Aluminum was the leader among industrials as it moved forward 1 1/2 at 34 1/2. Refining oils were weak as Imperial lost 1/2 at 45 1/2.

International Nickel set the pace in base metals up 1/2 at 86 1/2. Falconbridge and Noranda each gained 1/2 and Consolidated Mining was ahead 1/2 at 22 1/2.

Western oils dipped as Calgary and Edmonton were off 1/2 at 29 1/2 and Home B eased 1/2 at 19 1/2. Pacific Petroleum and Pembina were unchanged.

Highs in Utilities

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were mixed in active trading. Three new highs were recorded in the utilities—Canadian International Power, up 1/2 at 23 1/2, Shawinigan, up 1/2 at 31 1/2, and Newfoundland Light up 1/2 at 50.

Papers were mixed. Abitibi lost 1/2 at 34 1/2, and Powell River was off 1/2 at 36 1/2. Fraser gained 1/2 at 30 1/2, and Brown was up 1/2 at 12.

Canada Steamship Lines was up 1/2 at 40 1/2 and Dominion Foundry advanced 1/2 at 38 1/2, registering new highs.

CPR lost 1/2 at 29.

Trend Is Lower

VANCOUVER — Prices showed little change, although the overall trend was lower. Inland Gas at 38 1/2 and Macmillan at 34 1/2 were strong industrial features.

Cowichan was 95 cents and Bralorne $6 among mines. Fort St. John at 390 rose in a steady oil session.

London Stock Prices

LONDON (CP) — After early hesitations prices on the London stock exchange developed a firmer trend.

Gift-edged securities continued firm on renewed investment buying. Foreign bonds and rails were quiet and irregular. Dollar stocks lost ground.

CHICAGO (AP) — Stock closings: Ford 12 1/2, General Motors 12 1/2, Chrysler 12 1/2, and others.

Wheat 1 1/2, Corn 1 1/2, Soybeans 1 1/2, and others.

Grain Prices

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prices were irregular in moderately active trading.

Some buying in wheat was prompted by reports of unfavorable harvesting weather from the prairies. There also was evidence of export demand in wheat.

No export business was immediately reported. Oats and barley trade was on domestic lines and prices were irregular in quiet trading.

CHICAGO (AP) — Prices for grain futures soared mostly higher but later weakened as selling increased.

The largest setback in wheat was on the deferred contracts which were off more than a cent a bushel at times. The more distant rye futures also were down a cent or more during the trading session, apparently following the trend in wheat.

Most Controversial Company

Avro's Amazing Rise

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

Although its results announced yesterday do not indicate it has been one of Canada's most successful companies in the past year, A. V. Roe Canada Ltd. can hardly be deprived of its place as the one which has aroused most controversy.

The firm—which won 77 per cent control of Dominion Steel and Coal after a bitter proxy amount set aside for depreciation was $14,930,163 against only $6,277,794 a year ago. Working

But even though the government's hesitancy about ordering the Arrow jet must be annoying to executives of the company, Roe is sticking to its aim to make Canada more independent creatively.

"This has been the cornerstone of our corporate philosophy from the beginning," says Sir Roy, "It has resulted not only in great advances in Canadian aeronautics, but it also gave Canada engineering and research resources, providing creative opportunities for young Canadian scientists and engineers."

Detailing its growth since it came to Canada 12 years ago, A. V. Roe Canada Ltd. shows that its assets have increased by 310 per cent. It has grown from a single company to an affiliation of 39 corporations. There Flake board is manufactured by slicing thin wafers from wood and reforming them into boards by bonding with resins. Principal uses are in furniture, veneer, cores, flooring underlay, wall sheeting, cabinet and counter work, doors and soffits.

The location is expected to be the Greater Vancouver region. The mill, the first fine paper mill in Western Canada, will employ approximately 140 people.

Yankees Regain World Series Title By Whipping Braves, 6-2, in Final

By OSCAR FRALEY

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Bob Turley's brilliant relief pitching and a clinching home run blast by Moose Skowron swept the New York Yankees to the greatest world series comeback in 33 years Thursday as they defeated the Milwaukee Braves, 6-2, in the final game of the classic.

Roaring back from a three to one game deficit—a feat accomplished only once before in series annals and that by the Pirates of 1925—the Yankees avenged themselves a second time on Lew Burdette, the man who had beaten them three times when the tables were turned a year ago.

And they put away their 18th championship of the baseball world—and their seventh in 10 years—with an old-time Yankee barrage in the eighth inning capped by Skowron's three-run

Jackpot drive far into the left centerfield bleachers. It took a horde of Yankee heroes to stow it away for them this warm, sunny day before an alternately moaning and groaning gallery of 46,367 fans.

Turley, who lost the second game but then came back to win the fifth, saved the sixth and rode to the rescue again Thursday with two-hit pitching over the last six and two-thirds innings after big Don Larsen was batted out.

Yogi Berra, whose two-out double started the winning rally.

Elston Howard, who drove him home with the run which won it.

Andy Carey, with a single that kept it rolling.

And the Moose, coming out of a season's end slump with a three-run blast which put the leaping on the cake and brought the cork out of the champagne bottles.

HAD HELP

They had a lot of help from the Braves, a tight and "down" bunch after kicking away what looked like a runaway series.

Three times the Braves had hitters up with the bases loaded and all they could get was one run, giving them a 1-0 bulge in the first inning. But in the Yankee second, Frank Torre, regarded as one of the slickest defensive first basemen in baseball, kicked two away to give the Yankees a pair of unearned runs.

TIED IT UP

Del Crandall—long regarded by the Yankees as the most overrated player on the Braves—tied it up with a home run shot into the left field bleachers in the sixth but it wasn't in the cards for Burdette to beat the Yankees again.

He tried, and gamely. As he headed into the eighth inning, the man from the West Virginia mountains had given the Yankees only three hits even though he was laboring with only two days rest.

ROOF FELL IN

Burdette got the first two men in the eighth—and then the roof fell in on both him and the Braves. Berra got it rolling by doubling off the wall of the right field stands, a ball which was only three feet from being in the stands.

Howard, who bailed out the Yankees with his defensive play in the fifth and sixth games to bring them off the floor, singled through the middle to score Yogi and put the Yankees ahead 3-2 with what was to be the winning run.

MOOSE MOVES IN

Carey followed with a single off Mathews' glove which sent Howard to second and then it was the "Moose" moving in.

His blast, the 10th Yankee homer of the series against a mere three for the Braves, wrapped it up for good.

Happy Homecoming for Hero

"Take five, pal," yells Yankee catcher Yogi Berra as he greets teammate Bill Skowron (14) at dugout steps after New York first baseman hit three-run homer in eighth inning to end scoring in 6-2 Yankee victory in

LEW BURDETTE... last year's hero

Casey Fires Parting Shot

MILWAUKEE—"Now we look like we could play in the National League."

A proud, beaming Casey Stengel tossed that jibe back at Lew Burdette and the Milwaukee Braves yesterday in a New York Yankee dressing room that echoed with the wildest victory celebration in the past 10 years.

No one, least of all Lew Burdette, who had remarked after winning the second game, "I'd like to see the Yankees in the National League," would have been willing to argue with the Yankee manager.

There were tears in some eyes and a dead silence in the Braves' dressing room following the Yankees' 6-2 victory in the seventh game as manager Fred Haney buried Milwaukee's dream of world domination with the words: "Give them all the credit and let's not alibi. They beat us and they deserved to win."

NO CRYING

But Haney made it plain there would be no post-mortems on the Braves' world series defeat. "Let's not talk about our batting slump," he said. "Let's talk about their pitching. Bob Turley pitched great ball. So did Whitey Ford, only he was unlucky."

Asked about the turning point in the series, Haney replied: "The turning point was in our bats. We scored 17 runs in our first two games and only seven in the last five. Yesterday we had our chances and today we had our chances, but we didn't get the runs."

"ALL GET RINGS"

"We should play eight games so we could get a tie and everybody could get world series rings," Burdette said with a rueful grin.

The only Brave to show outward signs of distress was first baseman Frank Torre, charged with two errors on errant throws to Lew Burdette covering the bag on consecutive plays in the second inning.

"Why was it my error," he said. "Both throws were ahead of the runner. I don't get it. Oh, I don't give a damn now anyway. We lost."

THEY CAME BACK

Shortstop Johnny Logan agreed with Torre, but added: "They beat us with pride and determination. They came back with their backs up and their bats swinging."

Casey Stengel, too, had words of praise for his Yankees as Moose Skowron and Elston Howard were mobbed by triumphant teammates.

Casey, proud as a peacock over Yankee pitching all the way, said Turley had "a good sinker and a good curve."

Garden Notes

Scourge of Cabbages

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRIS

During the past 10 days I have had no fewer than 10 requests from readers to discuss the problem of cabbage. I can understand this because, for this time of year, it is becoming so widespread and so common that many gardeners in this area have been compelled to give up the idea and it can be transmitted to other plants by means of their roots. It is not, as many people think, a disease of the plant itself, but more often the plant is infected by the soil.

It is not, as many people think, a disease of the plant itself, but more often the plant is infected by the soil. The first stage of infection is the appearance of a small, dark, water-soaked spot on the leaf, which later becomes a large, irregular, brown spot.

CHARTERED BY ANA... During the past 10 days I have had no fewer than 10 requests from readers to discuss the problem of cabbage. I can understand this because, for this time of year, it is becoming so widespread and so common that many gardeners in this area have been compelled to give up the idea and it can be transmitted to other plants by means of their roots. It is not, as many people think, a disease of the plant itself, but more often the plant is infected by the soil. Consumers Must Get More To Spend More—Knowles

SARNEY, leader of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Party, today urged the federal government to encourage consumers to spend more money.

He said Thursday night "the government must encourage consumers to spend more money. But if they are to do this, they must first be encouraged to spend more money."

Jerry Will Be Our Cup of Tea

Victoria will be represented as a little bit of Old England in the Gray Cup parade in Vancouver at the end of November.

City council yesterday approved the idea of entering a float on which Jerry Gosses and two other men will appropriately dressed, will sip tea beside a cricket pitch in front of a timbered cottage and the theme will be that the only cup Victoria is interested in is a cup of tea.

Council voted to seek help with the float from the Greater Victoria Centennial committee and intermunicipal committee.

Blinded Doukhobor Faces Bomb Charge

KELWANA, a Doukhobor, today faced a charge of possessing a bomb in a court in Vancouver.

The charge was brought by the Crown against Kelwana, 40, of Kelowna, B.C., who is blind and has been in the city since he was arrested last week.

Nuclear Moratorium

THE CANADIAN nuclear moratorium, proposed by the Soviet Union, today was reported ready for adoption by the Western powers.

Meanwhile, the big three nuclear powers, the U.S., Britain and the Soviet Union, are working on a possible final agreement at Geneva next month.

Britain and the United States were working on final wording of a resolution for the UN at Geneva.

The American move was interpreted as a signal that the U.S. was ready to accept the Soviet proposal.

Campbell River

Failure
Caused
Dimout

Equipment failure in the John Hart switchyard at Campbell River caused a wide-spread power dimout in many parts of the Island Thursday afternoon.

The equipment failed at 2:01 p.m. throwing the John Hart station out of service. The Campbell River station remained in service, but low voltage conditions prevailed until the new switchgear station was put on line at 2:15 p.m.

Several of the Island's largest industrial plants were affected by the power failure. At the lower Island was protected by relays which cause the connection between B.C. and Power Commission systems. Almost at the instant of the switchgear failure.

Drug Charges

Youths
Guilty
Of Theft

COURTENAY, Oct. 9.—A Cumberland Island youth was sentenced to three months in jail after being found guilty of breaking and entering a garage of a safe from a Cumberland Island.

Kenneth Maxwell MacKenzie, 18, was sentenced to jail by Judge Arnold Thomas.

Chemist Allan Robert Campbell of the B.C. Police Laboratory in Regina testified that paint flakes found on the trunk of MacKenzie's car were similar in composition to paint used to paint a garage earlier.

Judge Hanna set Oct. 21 as the date on which the pair will stand trial on a charge of attempting to defraud the justice last after evidence in a drug case against them had appeared Sept. 9 from the Cumberland Island police station in which they were being held.

At the youth's preliminary hearing on a drug charge, a middle-aged Cumberland Island man, Mrs. Dorothy Levens, testified that she had seen MacKenzie on the evening of Aug. 16, when she said she was told three orange capsules for $1.

The pair were arrested that evening and a marked fish found on MacKenzie.

The bill, capsules and a pair of two-serial numbers were appeared from Cumberland Island police station Sept. 9 when the accused pair were awaiting a hearing on another charge.

Mrs. Levens testified that she had taken the drugs under a doctor's prescription for six years.

"He (MacKenzie) said he would always keep me supplied and I would not have to worry," said Mrs. Levens.

MacKenzie told her he was not selling her "the real stuff," said the woman, but said he was going to get it on a trip to Vancouver.

"He told me he had given three girls in Courtenay a shot and showed me a mark on his arm where he had one."

Courtenay druggist James Dick identified MacKenzie as the youth to whom he filled a prescription of 24 capsules of sodium secobarbital the day of the alleged offence.

Launching Ramps
Program to Start

A long-term construction program to install boat launching ramps of a type tested this summer by the department of recreation and conservation at suitable lakeshore areas in the province was announced yesterday by Recreation Minister Earle Westwood.

Experimental launching strips of a concrete and steel interlaced type were constructed at Cultus Lake this spring and have proven economic and durable, Mr. Westwood said.

In camping units to be constructed.

South of Lytton at Gold Pan on the Fraser River. 20 units to be constructed.

Trunk site of 20 tables at Savona on Kamloops Lake.

Expansion of the campsite at Lee Lake, 12 miles north of Kamloops to 75 units from 34.

STAKE, McCONNELL. Parking lot, toilet facilities and 10 picnic tables at both stake and McConnell Lakes adjacent to Lee Lake.

Expansion of facilities at 200 and Shuswap Lakes campsite to include water system, swimming floats and beach improvement.

Expansion to 100 units of the eight-unit campsite at Yard Creek 37 miles west of Revelstoke.

A picnic area and 100-car parking lot at Mara Park, south of Shuswap.

Mr. Westwood said the projects would mean winter jobs for hundreds of British Columbia workers.

TAKING LEAD. British Columbia, he said, will be taking the lead in a "new" Canada First project that will eventually see some 141 signposts, roadside picnic stations, picnic grounds, swimming floats and beach improvements along the coast.

The plan calls for a picnic park on First Creek located along the highway, about 10 miles from the highway and associated with a day park, about every 100 miles along the entire route of the Trans-Canada Highway.

Dr. Turner said both types of parks would play a big role in reducing fatigue and accident rate in stimulating tourist travel and promoting the movement of people.

Most advanced. It would result in Canada having one of the most advanced highway systems on the continent.

Full advantage will be taken of scenic vistas and historic points and in order to preserve the high standards of the Trans-Canada Highway.

The parks and rest stops will be of superior design and construction and of sufficient size to meet present and future needs.

A uniform system of signs will be adopted.

Mayor Tells of Threat by CIDC Member

'Put Up We-Did-It Signs or Do Without Grants'

Mayor Percy Scurrell said yesterday a member of the Capital Improvement District Commission had threatened to oppose further projects in Victoria if signs proposed by the CIDC were not erected.

"I have been threatened by a certain person that if the CIDC does not put up signs that this person will vote against further grants in the city," the mayor told city council.

"In such a case the grants could go to other Victoria municipalities."

Two aldermen had last week seen political motivation in the proposed new signs, which would read: "We did it" and "We did it for you."

Mayor Scurrell did not come to the city council last week. He said he was not in the city and he was not in the city.

The commission has 11 members, six appointed by the council and five nominated by the CIDC.

The mayor's statement came at a time when it appeared council might approve a public works program, estimated at $1.5 million, to improve the city's roads.

The mayor said he was not in the city and he was not in the city.

side signs of a different nature.

In the future, the mayor said, he would like to see a sign that would say: "We did it for you."

The mayor said he was not in the city and he was not in the city.

What party is it? And what party is it? And what party is it?

The mayor said he was not in the city and he was not in the city.

Alfred Dowell said he was afraid the council's attitude might kill the signs that had the golden egg. He would have no objection to the signs if the city paid for them. He said he would not object to them if the city paid for them.

The mayor said he was not in the city and he was not in the city.

Irreverent Mouse Breaks Up Ceremony

PORT ALBERNI—A mouse nearly "broke up" a solemn naval prayer during formal inspection of the Alberni Sea Cadet Corps here Tuesday.

Just as the corps chaplain, Rev. Roy Rodgers, was delivering the prayer over the bowed heads of cadets being inspected by Lieut. J. Addison, RCN, Victoria, a loud shriek rang out over the hushed gathering.

Order was restored after cadets routed a mouse that had emerged from a locker and run up the arm of corps auxiliary president, Mrs. Ida Hill, as she was helping prepare refreshments.

Lord Louis Sees Sub Hunters Work

Britain's First Sea Lord, Admiral of the Fleet the Earl Mountbatten, yesterday watched a condensed version of the sub versus surface craft operations which are frequently carried out between Royal Canadian Navy ships and United States subs.

He saw the Canadian-built destroyer-escort Skrean, in company with the improved Tribal class destroyer Athabaskan, search for and "destroy" the U.S. submarine Volador in Juan de Fuca Strait. The exercise lasted slightly more than two hours.

Sensitive Instrument Records Fishlight

WASHINGTON (NANA)—An instrument that can measure intensity of light less than a trillionth that of noonday sunshine has been developed by a Woods Hole, Mass., Oceanographic Institution physicist.

The instrument, called a bathyphotometer, is beyond doubt the most sensitive light detector developed so far.

It was designed by Dr. George L. Clark of the Institute to detect any trace of luminescence in the supposedly everlastingly dark depths of the ocean farther below the deepest penetration of sunlight.

On a recent cruise of the Woods Hole research ship Caryn, the bathyphotometer was lowered and used successfully at depths of more than a mile.

At these depths there is detectable luminescence, attributed to the luminescence of animals. Against this background, frequent brighter flashes are recorded as individual animals.

Giant Missouri Full of Sewage

Pollution—Who Cares?

U.S. Cracks Down On Lethargic Cities

By HOLLIS LIMPICHT

OMAHA, Neb. (NANA)—The United States Public

Health Service is cracking down on major cities which dump raw sewage into streams which also provide drinking water for downriver communities.

Cities along the Missouri River, from Sioux City, Ia., to Kansas City, Mo., have been warned to end pollution. If they refuse, fines are threatened against both the cities and public officials.

The health service is determined that the Missouri River shall not become a fouled home and industrial wastes as some eastern rivers have been. Many wide rivers in the industrial east are not only unfit for human consumption but have been so contaminated that fish cannot live in their waters.

LIVESTOCK WASTE
One factor which endangers the Missouri is that four major livestock centers are dumping waste from their stockyards and packinghouses into the river.

A city-by-city survey shows that residents of these communities have not been convinced of the seriousness of the problem. With all of them facing the common burdens of higher taxes, it has been difficult to sell them on the idea of building multi-million dollar sewage treatment plants.

NEAR INTAKE
City council of Sioux City not long ago repudiated action by an earlier council and refused to spend $4,000,000 for a plant.

In Omaha voters turned down last spring some $17,000,000 worth of bond issues for a treatment plant for the pack house district plus another plant to serve a large residential section of the city. How businessmen survive from this sector is poured into the Missouri River about a half mile upstream from the drinking water intake of Council Bluffs, Ia.

Light damage was caused in the kitchen of a Spanish home yesterday afternoon after fat in the oven caught fire.

Sanchez fire department said the blaze, at 1906 Woodley Road, was quickly put out after the alarm was turned in at 3:16 p.m.

Legion Urges:
Put Youth Into Uniform
OTTAWA (CP)—The 250,000-member Canadian Legion yesterday asked the government for a one-third increase in war disability pensions over the 1956 rates.

In a brief presented to the cabinet, the legion also recommended national registration of all youths entering high school and a "system of military training for our young people to which they adequately fit them to defend this country should the need arise."

Legion president Dave Burgess of Ottawa said after the one-hour meeting with the cabinet that the government had been "very sympathetic to our proposals" and would consider them. However, there had been no discussion of individual recommendations.

When Omaha voters turned down the sewer bonds, the state health department stepped in and banned new housing construction in those areas of the city dumping sewage into the river.

Beatings at Party Described in Court

Shaktuntar Dine Kudra, 2931 Nanaimo, told Saanich police court yesterday he had been subjected to seven or eight beatings which put him in hospital for four or five days.

Testifying in an assault case for the assault, 131 Crease, Kudra said it all began Sept. 19 when he and two other men joined Shama to celebrate the latter's wife having a baby.

The men had been drinking and were continuing their party at Shama's house when the beatings started, he said. Most of the time, he did not know which of the three men were hitting him, but he remembered an attack by the accused with a "monkey wrench."

for the assault.

UNCONSCIOUS

After he was knocked unconscious and recovered three times, he wanted to go home, the witness said.

He went to the bathroom, and it was there that Shama came along and asked him, "Are you really married?" Mr. Kudra said. When he replied that he was married, the accused pulled a "monkey wrench" from his bag.

HIT ON HEAD

"He hit me on the head with a monkey wrench. He kept on hitting me." The witness said he later got up from the bathroom floor and returned to the living room where he again was knocked unconscious. He remembered seeing the accused hit him in the face with a bottle.

He was later beaten on the couch and then told by someone to get out of the house, Mr. Kudra said. He was hit from behind as he walked out the door and someone dragged him to a car.

STRUCK IN CAR

He was dumped into the front seat, and later realized that Shama was driving the car. "He hit me while he was driving down the road. He kept hitting me," Kudra said.

Still later, he remembered a policeman shining a flashlight in his face.

Under cross-examination, the witness said the foursome had had some beer and later that night bought two large bottles of rum which they consumed.

DOCTOR'S EVIDENCE

Dr. James Crosby Donald, the only other witness called before Magistrate Henry C. Hall adjourned the trial until Oct. 16, said he examined the patient in the emergency ward of St. Joseph's Hospital and found multiple cuts and bruises on the face and splinters of glass on the chest and hand.

Asked if he thought these injuries could have been caused in a traffic accident, Dr. Donald replied, "I think it would be difficult to explain away so many injuries in such a variety of places."

Churchill Hails

Free Trade Zone

WASSENAR, Holland (UPI) — Canadian Minister of Trade and Commerce Gordon Churchill said here yesterday he is optimistic regarding the influence of the European common market and the possible free trade zone upon Canada's exports to Europe.

He said that the common market and free trade zone will "tend to raise the standard of living in Europe and thereby place Europe in a position to buy more overseas exports."

Second meeting of the recently-formed Clan MacMillan will be held at 8 p.m. on Nov. 12 at the home of Douglas McMillan, 646 Head Street.

C. H. McMillan of Victoria, appointed B.C. chairman of Clan MacMillan, said the national chairman, Sir Ernest McMillan, is expected in Victoria in about two weeks.

Children

Handicaps 'Sickness' Of Future

WINNIPEG (CP) — Persons born handicapped likely will take more of the family doctor's time than the sick during the next 20 years, predicts Dr. Donald Paterson, honorary consulting pediatrician at Vancouver General Hospital.

He told the Manitoba Medical Association convention here the discovery of antibiotics "has completely changed the outlook of medicine."

Meanwhile, he said, the number of congenitally defective children will steadily increase with the growing population.

He said the family doctor should be the champion of these handicapped persons and urged establishment of a registry for defective children as the first step in determining what facilities are needed to help them.

Dr. Paterson suggested that doctors help parents teach mentally retarded children simple procedures in the home at an early age.

Prairie Collars Up As Winter Flows In

By CANADIAN PRESS

Bitter cold flowed over the Canadian West Thursday and snow whitened large sections of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, where subfreezing temperatures were widely reported.

In the East, it was summer-like; the Ottawa temperature reached 71 and it was 68 at Montreal. Skies were generally cloudy and the air was moist with the threat of thunder showers. The warmth spread into the Atlantic provinces.

Early Thursday, as much as eight inches of snow were recorded in northern Alberta. Five inches fell at Whitecourt, 100 miles northwest of Edmonton, and the capital itself got three-quarters of an inch.

The overnight low at Whitehorse in the Yukon was 3 below zero, the earliest date in its recorded weather history for a below-zero reading.

Coastal British Columbia was also hit by a balanced rain expected to ease today.

Poachers 'Gangsters'

HALIFAX (CP) — The latest outbreak of violence by lobster poachers in the Miramichi area of New Brunswick has been termed "sheer gangsterism" by District Protection Officer A. E. Robichaud of Moncton.

The poachers catch lobsters in areas where the season is closed and move into nearby open zones to land the catch.

men fired two shotgun volleys at an empty fisheries patrol boat as she lay moored at Eel River. A department report issued Wednesday said there were no injuries but the boat's radio and engine were damaged.

It was the second time the illegal had come under fire. During a night patrol in August, a poacher attempted unsuccessfully to ram her, then opened fire. Nobody was hurt.

Protection Officer Robichaud was ambushed by gunmen in the community of Four Roads while with Fishery Officer M. A. MacDonald. Bullets whistled over their car but again nobody was hurt.

Sunday's shotgun attack ended a brief lull since Fisheries Minister MacLean ordered a crackdown on the poachers Sept. 18.

Saskatchewan Fights Air Link

REGINA (CP) — Strong opposition to a second trans-continental air service was expressed to the air transport board Thursday by the Saskatchewan government.

In a brief to the board's hearing here, the provincial government said it is not convinced there is enough traffic for a second service and it fears costs might be increased.

Aluminum Engines For Cars by 1960?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — General Motors Corp. yesterday gave its strongest warning yet to the iron industry to expect a switch to aluminum automobile engines within the near future.

GM engineers refused to be pinned down on a date. But other automotive sources indicated the new lightweight engine would make its first appearance possibly just in certain cars or as optional equipment.

Wenner-Gren Deal Labelled Bennett's Revenge on Ottawa

TRAIL (CPI) — B.C. CCF Leader Robert Strachan said in an interview here Thursday that hopes for early development of the Columbia River hydro potential were shattered by Premier Bennett's insistence on the Wenner-Gren project.

"I think the Wenner-Gren deal," he said, "is Bennett's revenge on the federal government through with his Kaiser plan."

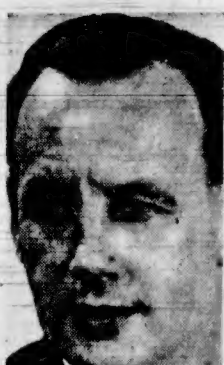

Mr. Strachan said he did not think the Wenner-Gren project would get under way as quickly as Mr. Bennett had recently forecast.

"They may blaze a trail through the bush in 1960 and call it a start. But the Wenner-Gren proposition will undermine Canada's bargaining position with regard to the Columbia."

four million horsepower, then it would leave B.C. in a situation where it would be many, many years before we would require the power from the Columbia."

Mr. Strachan said he was "sorry" that any publicity had been given to Stanley Knowles' declaration that the Mine, Mill Union was totalitarian and should be excluded from participating in regional conferences.

Radar Screens With Memory

LONDON (UPI)—British scientists have developed radar screens that can "remember" images for periods of up to 20 minutes, scientific sources reported yesterday.

The sources said the new system enables the radar screen to remember and record the paths of a series of individual ships or aircraft. Each of these paths can be recalled to the screen for examination and then dismissed to give place to another one—simply by pressing a button.
